

1958 Chevy Apache Fleetside Pickup

Previously owned by country singer Hank Williams Jr.

This 1958 Chevrolet Apache features Anniversary Gold and Honey Beige paint offered to celebrate GM's fiftieth anniversary. Most Apaches were step sides, "Fleetside" was introduced mid-year on the 1958 Apache.

This vehicle represents true Americana. A "working man's vehicle" Apaches were found on farms, construction sites, and anywhere the utility of a pickup was required. The in-line six cylinder engine was fiercely reliable and considered a little workhorse. Few original engines can be found today as most were replaced with "big blocks" due to the sturdy frame and ample space under the hood.

The public loves this truck! The compliments, awards and "thumbs-up" you'll receive prove it. Featuring "three-on-the-tree" you'll have a hard time shifting, waving and thanking folks for their compliments. Just wait till you pull in a gas station to fill-up.
